

Benzene

We remain at the cutting edge of benzene litigation, thanks to our maintained and culled database of several thousand journal articles and treatises relevant to benzene exposure and the diseases it is alleged to cause. That unrivaled expertise has allowed us to successfully challenge and exclude plaintiffs' experts in venues across the country.

In our role as national trial counsel for defendants in benzene litigation in over a dozen states, we have coordinated local counsel across the country to implement a coordinated, nationwide defense strategy. FormanWatkins also represents clients on a local counsel basis in jurisdictions where we have offices. In that role, we recently tried a case to a defense verdict for a major energy company. FormanWatkins is able to provide a full spectrum of legal service for our clients' benzene litigation.